ADVANCED MODULE - WEALTH TRANSFER OF REAL ESTATE FOR FINANCIAL SERVICES PROFESSIONALS

Estate
Planning
Practitioners
Limited

PURPOSE OF PROGRAMME

With growing numbers of ageing and the retired having residential properties as their main store of wealth, it is important for financial advisors to understand their clients' wealth transfer needs surrounding real estate. Moreover, clients may own multiple properties, including commercial and industrial properties, in Singapore and abroad.

This course is designed for financial advisors and private wealth managers to get a glimpse of the wide range of concerns surrounding the transfer of ownership to the next generation. Challenges such as portfolio and cashflow management, property management, valuation, depreciating values of leasehold properties, financial encumbrances, etc, and the approach to mitigate these challenges will be discussed and facilitated through 5 case studies. The cases will cover how demographic trends and depreciation of public and private housing affects the typical retired households in Singapore, to the opposite extreme of the needs of clients in dealing with the legacy and preservation of valuable real estate.

After going through this program, the advisors will be better equipped to guide their clients regarding wealth transfer to their loved ones in the form of Real Estate. It will allow the advisors to consider broader issues when assisting their clients to write up their wills and allocating assets to beneficiaries.

With Real Estate investments, wealth planners would have to be cognizant and conversant with real estate specific issues relating to asset transfer, tax, stamp duties, mortgages and loans, etc. The coursework will provide participants with a framework and a checklist to advise clients in relation to the wealth transfer of Real Estate. Potential solutions for clients creating their Wills may include structures such as Testamentary Trusts, Living Trusts, Standby Trusts and other wealth succession structures.

Through the case studies and potential solutions presented in this course, participants will get to expand their toolkits to engage clients in deeper discussions during the wealth transfer planning process.
